

A Multicultural Circus of Delight in English and Russian

Yucky the Bug...No-Tail, the elephant...a mailman kangaroo...a sailor frog...a good-natured Boogie Man. These are a few of the colorful characters children (and their parents) will meet in the pages of A Great Time: Children's Poems in English and Russian by Masha Shurin (©2007, $19.95, www.publishersdesign.com).

Shurin, who grew up in Russia and worked in the Russian circus, affirms friendship, courtesy and sharing in these poems. They are playful yet wise, with just a touch of knowing humor, as in "Yucky the Bug"

Russian illustrator Valentin Ginukov adds stunning detail along with a bit of whimsy to each of the poems in this fun book.

Yucky The Bug

A bug sat beneath a shady leaf
She cried and cried with no relief
Felling so lonely and unlucky,
For she was the bug they called "Yucky."

...She might have been nicknamed something
sweet,

If only she learned to wash her feet.
Of course, the reason the nickname stuck,
Was because of bad habits, not bad luck!..."

In today's multicultural world, A Great Time is a terrific way for children to experience both English and Russian.

As children listen with bright-eyed attention, they will ask questions about the "strange" type on the page.

This opens the way for discussions about different languages and cultures.

Their favorite illustrations will need no translations.
